THE CLINTON, COMEY, MUELLER ET AL SCANDALS EXPLAINED IN 323 WORDS

Gregg Jarrett on Hannity, Fox News Channel, December 13, 2017

The unprecedented political scandals that are being gradually revealed, involving Hillary Clinton, Former FBI Director James Comey, Special Counsel Robert Mueller, and other players and institutions representing the anti-Trump Shadow Government and the Deep State, can be difficult to understand. They represent an ominous cloud that is darkening the skies over the corrupt and toxic Washington, D.C. swamp. Connecting the dots in all of this, as new revelations are reported daily, can become a full-time job.

last two years in their behalf. They died very much alone.

The only emotion was displayed by Ethel. As she entered the room, she turned to shake hands with Mrs. Helen Evans, the regular matron, and then, impulsively, drew Mrs. Evans to her, hugging and kissing her for a moment.

Julius was dressed in a white T-shirt and brown pants. Ethel wore a dark greenish, loose-fitting printed dress and both were wearing brown loafers.

For Julius, the last walk was comparatively short. For Ethel, it was long.

Only 40 Feet Away.

Just before the electrocutions, Julius was placed in one of the half dozen pre-execution cells only 40 feet from the chair. Ethel remained in her cell in the condemned women's section—some 200 feet from the chair.

Had she died first, there would have been a chance for a last good-by as she passed his curtained cell. As it was, the cell was empty—and her husband dead—when Ethel went on her last walk.

The only three newsmen permitted to witness the dual execution—the first daylight executions in the memory of Sing Sing attaches—returned from the death house at 8:25 P. M. to brief 38 other newspapermen on the deaths.

Walking the last mile with both spies in addition to guards or marshals, was Rabbi Irving Kaufman, prison chaplain. For Julius, he recited the 23d Psalm, intoning "Though I walk in the valley of the and he constantly murmured prayers for the couple.

The daylight execution—a very dim orange sun was disappearing behind the cliffs on 4th east side of the Hudson—was made necessary by a week-long series of court sessions. The executions had been deferred beyond the customary 11 P. M. Thursday date, and the authorities wanted them to be over before the Jewish Sabbath began at 8:31 o'clock last night.

Though every government security agency reportedly had undevoted representatives in listening—in addition to hundreds of

he had detected a faint heartbeat after the first three. "There must be an heartbeat at all," he said, and for that reason had signaled the executioner to give the two additional jolts of 2,000 volts each.

Both spies were proceeded by the rabbi as they walked slowly, calmly, to their last moment on earth. Ethel, 37-year-old mother of two sons, had a half-onion on her face, was impassive-faced, but when she extended her hand to matron Evans and then pulled her close for the last hug and kiss.

She winced slightly when the electrode was placed against a shaved spot on the top of her head

5,000 Phone The News

More than 5,000 persons phoned Two News yesterday and last night for news of the execution of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. Of those who commented, nearly all were in favor of the couple's going to their deaths. The heaviest load of calls was received between 5 and 9 P. M., the hour in which the Rosenbergs died.

marriage shown. He seemed to bow to his death, without a word. It took about a minute to strip him and fasten the electrodes. Then the Kips watched him slowly waiting for him to exhale to give the signal for the electricity.

As the jolt rocked him, the remaining air was forcibly expelled from his lungs with a blowing sound. At the same time there was the booming of the electricity. And then silence except for the whispered prayers of Rabbi Kaufman.

A. STS-Content Map of a Human ChromosomeB. YAC Isolation and Contig Assembly

FIGURE 1 General strategy for constructing STS-content maps. (A) A physical map corresponding to a region of a human chromosome is represented with STSs as landmarks (depicted as unique symbols). Each STS consists of a short DNA sequence that can be specifically detected by a PCR assay employing two oligodeoxynucleotide primers. (B) A YAC-based STS-content mapping scheme is depicted schematically. A YAC library, consisting of YAC clones of various sizes and unknown compositions of STSs (indicated as open symbols), is screened for a subset of available STSs using a PCR-based screening method.⁽¹⁴⁾ For each group of isolated clones, only the STS whose corresponding PCR assay was used to perform the library screen is known to be present in the YACs (indicated as filled-in symbols). However, the isolated YACs can then be tested for the presence of additional STSs as well as sized electrophoretically. The resulting information can be used to establish the overlap relationships among the clones and to assemble a YAC contig, from which an STS-content map can be abstracted. In the example illustrated, the relative order of the STSs as well as some information about the spacings between them could be deduced. Of note, STS5 could not be included in the STS-content map, since YACs bearing that STS were not isolated from the library. Subsequent isolation of the depicted STSs-containing YACs using the corresponding PCR assay would be one route toward expanding the contig and placing this STS on the map.
